Dear Gordon,

I have of course, told you how very pleased we have been with the two large drawings of Hockley Mill Farm. The skill of virtually photographic representation you have and so beautifully demonstrate in these drawings is a rare gift indeed. We are pleased and proud to have them and to show them off to friends and visitors. Sandy's great skill, as well, in the superb muted water coloring of the Continental Army never fails to produce amazement. "How did she do that?" is the common expression. And when they look carefully at the thousands on thousands of black ink markings (not just the right word, but I never took art history) you two do to convey a better than photographic whole, words fail them. You are artists in the large sense of the word and should be very proud.

Please copy this letter and give it to any reluctant customer you choose. It might help them do the right thing for themselves as well as you. I do hope so.

Very best personal regards,

William B. Anderson
